

Friends of Madrona Marsh Nature Center and Preserve

2021 Annual Report

During the year the Preserve offered a calm, beautiful place to walk and breathe for 16,909 visitors.

The Friends would like to acknowledge Steve Ash, Assistant Manager, and his part time staff; Jessica, Tracy, Mark and Jonathan, for their tireless dedication to keeping the Preserve, Nature Center and Gardens open and welcoming for all.

The Nature Center reopened in June and many educational programs returned:

Bird Walks for Beginners and Intermediate Birders

Nature Walks for all ages

Restoration continued

with Dan Portway's Team, Tony Baker and volunteer groups such as the Audubon Society's Young Environmental Scientists

Meet Our New Board Members

Steven Birnbrum grew up locally in Hermosa Beach and studied Environmental Studies at UC Santa Cruz. He is currently working at the Palos Verdes Landfill as a Technician. “I love the Madrona Marsh and am happy to help as the new Membership Director.” Steve will work with long time membership volunteer Cliff Heise. Cliff will continue to maintain records for membership.

Catherine Leys, Volunteer Director, works in human rights with various non-government organizations. She is active in the Torrance community, working to achieve real time air monitoring through Torranceair.org. She has lived in Torrance for nearly a decade with her husband and two kids, ages 8 and 10. “They love going to the Marsh and exploring all that it offers!”

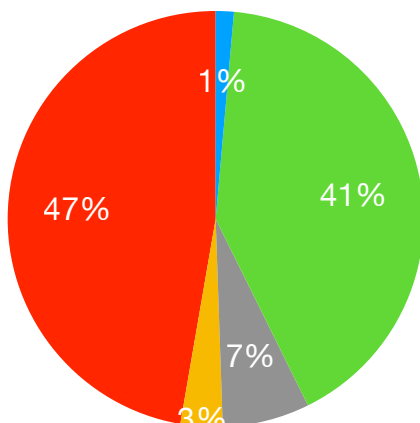

Biological Collections and Display Committee

The new Collections and Display committee, directed by board member Jeanne Bellemin, will utilize some of our better specimens of preserved birds. Although we have many great taxidermy mounts of birds, we have only a small collection of birds prepared as study skins. Study skins preserve the skin with feathers, the skull with beak and the legs of the bird. They are easier to transport for teaching and outreach purposes.
